

BRITTON ONLY NEW CHAMPION IN RING
EVENTS OF SEASON

By Strikes.

With the boxing season just about over, the followers of the ring are now beginning to look over the eventful season, and taken stock of the notable incidents that have happened in the past twelve months. There is but one new real champion, there is his right to the title is undisputed, but Jack Britton is generally accepted to be kingpin of welterweights. The only one here lifted to blood despatcher glory is the Chicago welter had given Ted Lewis, England's alleged champion a neat boxing lesson at New Orleans, the man at least had a willing boxer to clamor and to honor. In the history of the ring, no other boxer has ever stuck to a task so long as did Britton in his pursuit of the championship, and success came to him, but not to late. Britton started as a bantam weight, and when he neared the title, grew too heavy for his class. As a light-weight he was known to some, because the other fighters refused to stand up to be boxed and beat every fighter he ever went up against during late years, or at least gave them as much as he received. This included Chicago's press agent, Packey McFarland.

Two bouts and Darcy was only a few minutes from decision in twenty rounds of close minding. Packey McFarland and Ritchie, former lightweight champion also have a claim in for the title but McFarland and Ritchie are not the type of sports in the ring are for money alone and he would not fight until some money-mad promoter risked a guaranteed money in giving Packey the guarantee. The only reason Packey ever did was to stick his finger into an opponent's face and keep him in danger. With Ritchie it is different. He is a fighter and he has also handled Ted Lewis rather toughly in a New York bout although Kilbane is idle. Johnny Kilbane, kidginn of the feather, still holds his honors but has been inactive of late. His dancing with the "Welsh stuff" boxing has not met with the approval of the promoters, and consequently has not been getting away with any high priced purses. Kilbane still shuns the hard hitting George Chaney and Chaney is about the only feather, who is conceded to have a good chance of clipping the crown off the fleet footed Kilbane.

It is the history of auto racing has such a few men announced for one race as have for the 300 mile Chicago affair and in view of the fact that the famous truck here is the fastest in the world, it is not surprising that last year's records made when Darin Resta flashed across the line after the previous year's mark up to 400 miles will be shattered. Resta has not pushed in his last 250 miles last season.

White's manager. Mitchell lost his fear for that left jab somewhat and began to take chances. The seventh was White's best round for he pounded the Milwaukee kid all over the ring, but he was not able to get a floor at all. In his round Mitchell made a strong finish, whipping over left jabs so fast that White could not find time to set himself for a punishing blow. Mitchell, confident and strong, fought good in the eighth, setting a fast pace that kept White busy.

George Adams, the flashy little bantam weight, who knocked out Bud Corbett at Beloit, won over George Henderson on a technical decision. The referee, Lou Rottand and Phil Harrison counted an eight round draw. The attendance did not come up to expectations, between four and five thousand Great interest was evinced in Fulton's debut against Al Reich, but at the conclusion the general consensus was that the big boxer from Minnesota was far less experienced than the eastern experts had been led to believe. Fulton uncovered a fine left hand jab which he landed almost at will, but that was about the extent of his offensive repertoire. His right hand was seldom used, and then only in an awkward way, carrying little speed or force.

During the winter there was quite a lot of talk about Alexander the Great and Walter Johnson having trouble with their pitching arms. Some critics insisted that Alexander had been worked so much last season that he would not come back, while Johnson, it was said, was losing his speed. Alexander satisfied the fans in his first two games that his arm is as good as ever, while Johnson in one day dispelled all doubts as to Fans who saw Walter Johnson toy with the Athletics are convinced that the Idaho wonder is going to have the greatest season of his career. When a man has hung up a record such as Johnson has made it seems ridiculous to say that he is improving after being the marvel of the American league for at least eight years of his career, but we are convinced that Johnson is a greater pitcher today than he was when he was shattering records back in 1912.

Billy Bennett, who hails from Ireland, is today one of the new pets of the New York fight fans. His seconds thought he was getting the worst of it in the sixth round of a ten-round bill with young Riley and tossed a towel into the ring. Billy was so mad at their stopping the fight that as they came through the ropes to get him he whaled the whey out of them. The referee, too, got a clip on the chin. The fans cheered him to the echo.

Why do we wait till ears are deaf
And only utter kindly words,
When not a whisper can be heard?

Why do we wait till hands are laid
Close-folded, pulseless, ere we place
Within them roses, sweet and rare,
And lilacs in their flawless grace?

Why do we wait till eyes are sealed
To light and love in death's deep
Trance—
Dear wistful eyes—before we bend
Above them with impassioned glance?

Why do we wait till hearts are still
To tell them all the love that's ours,
And give them such late meed of praise,
And lay above them fragrant flowers?

How oft do we, careless, wait till life's
Sweet opportunities are past,
And break our "alabaster box
Of ointment" at the very last!

O, let us heed the living friend
Who walks with us life's common ways,
Watching our eyes for look of love,
And hungering for a word of praise!

If the love they professed so freely, in the days of courtship is to stand the test of time it will be because it partakes of the spirit of sacrifice. It was easy to say, "I love you," and seal the vow with a kiss as you swing on the gate in the moonlight, but not always so easy to look into the same face across the table a dozen years later, and be inspired by the same loving sentiment.

There are all kinds of houses called homes. Some of them are mansions and many more are humble cottages. But there are only two kinds of homes in the world—one where the husband and wife discover early in the game that married life is a "give and take" proposition and adopting this principle they grow together until the twain becomes one flesh.

The other is where disappointment comes as a rude awakening, and the drifting apart commences before the honeymoon is old. The thing called incompatibility is simply another name for selfishness, and the Catholic church is right on the divorce question.

JOHN W. PETERS IS CALLED BY DEATH

PASSED AWAY FRIDAY EVENING
AT HIS RESIDENCE.

A PROMINENT CITIZEN

Resident of Janesville Since Boyhood
He Has Played Important Part in its Unbuilding.

John William Peters, one of Janesville's prominent citizens, passed to the world beyond shortly before seven Friday evening, being stricken down by heart failure shortly after finishing his evening meal at his residence, 303 Fourth avenue. The news of Mr. Peters' demise came a shock to his many friends in the city with whom he had conversed but a few hours previous and in his death Janesville loses one of its substantial citizens.

Mr. A. E. Matheson voiced the following beautiful sentiment as to Mr. Peters when he says:

John W. Peters has left an enviable record for honesty, industry, and success, together with a host of friends. He commenced his active career in a humble way as a laborer. He did his work faithfully, industriously, and soon became a contractor. Before he ended his career, he was engaged in some very large and important contracts, the completed works now standing as monuments to his ability and industry.

He was a man of splendid administrative capacity and executive ability. What he did was thoroughly and systematically done. Mr. Peters' home wherever he found it, and did not hesitate to condemn it. He was open and frank in all his relations. What he had to say he proclaimed boldly and no one had any reason to doubt where he stood on any question.

He always supported and emphasized the best things in the community. He longed for better social conditions and did all he could to promote them.

He loved the church of which he was a member and was in a marked sense loyal to its teachings. Without proclaiming it himself or making any pretences as to his own virtues, he showed by his life that he tried to model it according to the teachings and life of the Master.

He belonged to all the Masonic bodies and was very much interested in them. After his church and his home, it may be said that he was most interested in Masonry. He had a special affection for the Order of the Temple. At the time of his death, he was Commander of the Knights Templar in this city. He had a pride in his position and work and rendered most effective service.

Mr. Peters leaves behind him a record of which his sorrowing widow and family may be proud. They have nothing to regret and they will ever have the sustaining influence of blessed memories.

John W. Peters was born Jan. 18, 1864, at Whitewater, the son of John and Lydia (Frost) Peters, natives of Devonshire, Eng. John Peters, the father of John W. Peters, immigrated to America about 1852 and located in Whitewater. He came to this city in 1864, and died in 1876 at the age of fifty-four years. By occupation Mr. Peters was a contractor, and he was very successful at his calling. Four children were born to him, three daughters and one son: Eliza, Mrs. Perkins of Elgin; John W. Peters, the subject of this notice; Elmer, and Thelma, Mrs. Henry Davis of Pullman, Ill.

John W. Peters was reared in this city and attended the schools of the city. His book education was cut short early and at the age of fifteen he began learning the trade of mason and builder, which he had successfully followed ever since.

For a period of about fifteen years Mr. Peters was with the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, constructing bridges, culverts, buildings, etc. He then engaged in business as a contractor and builder in Janesville. His business was not confined to the city alone but he also took contracts throughout the state. Among the substantial buildings which were erected by his skill are the Congregational church, the Lincoln school, the Hotel London, the Kent flats, the Waverly flats, the county buildings, including the Rock county jail, the State work of 1899. In 1893 Mr. Peters constructed the high school at Clinton, a modern structure. The late O. F. Nowlan was in partnership with him at that time, and possessing a thorough insight into their work commanding unlimited facilities for the prompt and efficient carrying out of their contracts. Mr. Peters and his partner were well equipped to handle the enormous volume of business which annually was awarded them and which destined them to be among the leading contractors in the state at that time.

The work of the firm was not confined solely to public buildings as they erected many of the finer old homes of the city, including Mr. Peters' own residence at 101 North 4th avenue, and more recently the remodeled Peters block on East Milwaukee street.

One of Mr. Peters' greatest achievements in the engineering and construction line was the power house at Lockport, Illinois, which is still pointed out as one of the best constructed buildings of its kind in the state. He has also a large work with the Hays Bros., whose partner he was, in constructing the Belle Fourche dam in South Dakota, an undertaking in which several large firms had failed previously. The last attempt which proved successful.

On Dec. 29, 1875, Mr. Peters married Miss Mary Kate Ward, daughter of D. C. and Mary Ward. One son and two daughters were born to their union: John DeWitt, who died in March, 1890, and Mrs. Myrtle Griffith of Duluth and Mrs. Kathryn Vanauker of this city.

Socially Mr. Peters was a member of Royal Arcanum; Western Star Lodge No. 14, F. and A. M.; Janesville Chapter No. 5, R. A. M.; Janesville Commandery No. 2, R. T.; Wisconsin Consistory, S. P. R. S.; at Milwaukee; and Tripple Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. Milwaukee.

Politically Mr. Peters was a Democrat. In the old city council he represented the Second ward as alderman for a number of years.

The funeral services will be held from his late residence on Monday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. John McKinney of Christ Episcopal church officiating. The burial will be at Oak Hill cemetery, the Knights Templars having charge of the services. The pall bearers will be William McNeill, W. H. Hyzer, R. M. Wicks, R. J. Hart, S. L. Hutchinson and H. J. Cunningham.

FARMER IS VICTIM OF RAILROAD "DIP"

George Herr of Sauk City Loses Well Filled Pocketbook at Railroad Station Here.

Once again the clever, elusive pickpocket, who plays his profession between Janesville and Madison, operating particularly on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad trains and stations, succeeded in lifting a purse that contained a fair sized amount of money, in this city.

Yesterday morning during the rush hour at the St. Paul railroad station a man giving his name as George Herr, of Sauk City, Wisconsin, boarded the train soon to leave for Madison.

In walking to the car the man ahead of Herr stooped over and fumbled around the seats, as if he was looking for something. His body blocked the way and Mr. Herr stood for a few seconds awaiting for him to get up. Behind the Sauk City man there was another man, apparently waiting to get a seat. Acting as if he was waiting for the man ahead of Herr and began pushing his forward, almost on top of the man on the floor.

While all this was going on, man number two, behind Mr. Herr, evidently neatly and gently extracted a long black, well filled purse from the hip pocket of the farmer. This pocketbook is said to have contained between sixty dollars and seventy dollars in bills. As soon as Mr. Herr finally got seated he missed his purse and appealed to the officers. The train was stopped and several men were searched by two officers, Patrolman Charles Harmon and Deputy Sheriff W. E. Wozan. No trace of the money could be found on any of the suspects, and the case was dropped.

The repeated picking of pocketbooks and stealing of women's purses has satisfied the police that it is always a matter of people and on or two officers at the station at this time.

ROADS BEING BUILT
CLOSED TO TRAFFIC

Janesville-Beloit Road and Highway North of Milton Are Inaccessible, Moore Reports.

Two Rock county highways in the vicinity of Janesville are inaccessible to motorists according to County Highway Commissioner C. E. Moore, who issued a warning to avoid them. The Janesville-Beloit road north of Afton is torn up for construction work and the road to Koshkonong, north of Milton, is also closed for rebuilding. Traffic to Beloit is directed by way of the river road via West park, as work on a culvert south of Afton makes the other route inadvisable. The road out of Milton Junction is recommended for travel to Koshkonong.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sarah S. Wiggins.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah S. Wiggins, widow of James Wiggins, were conducted by the Rev. M. A. Drew at Grace church, Center street, last Friday afternoon. Payne of Plainville, Ill., a brother and sister, and the surviving member of Mrs. Wiggins' family, and her three children, Mrs. Frank F. Ford of Chicago, Mrs. Henry D. Gray of Omaha, and Herbert E. Wiggins of Cando, North Dakota.

MILTON COLLEGE TO PRESENT "HAMLET"

Joint Literary Societies of Milton College Prepare for Annual Shakespearean Play, Given on Tuesday, June 13.

Entirely new scenery will be used in the presentation of Shakespeare's "Hamlet" by the four literary societies of Milton college in the college auditorium at Milton on the evening of June 13. The new scenery is the work of Howard Tuttle, leading scenic artist of Milwaukee, who paints the scenes for the Alhambra theatre, and resemble that used in the great Shakespearean pageant in Milwaukee. It embodies a new idea in stage setting, and at the same time more closely approaches the Shakespearean idea, than did the old style of elaborate and cumbersome scenery.

Kenneth B. Randolph of Milton, who won such unqualified praise as Romeo in "Romeo and Juliet" last year, plays the title role in this spring's play, and is said to be better than ever. He is supported by a strong cast, the pick of the four literary societies, whose members are drawn from thirteen states. Every part is filled by one who is experienced in dramatic art.

The play is under the able coaching of Professor L. H. Stringer, head of the department of public speaking in Milton college, who has himself played Hamlet, and who has made a study of the play for years.

Special efforts are being made by the management to procure the very best costumes and lighting effects, and to furnish the very best accommodations for the audience. Reserved seats will be on sale at Rogers' candy store, Milton, on June 6, or may be ordered by mail from the manager, F. G. Hall, Milton, Wis.

W. S. Hart, Dead Shot and Expert Horseman.

As a bad man, William S. Hart does some excellent shooting in the Triangle play, "Hell's Hinges" at the Beverly tonight. Hart has the role of Blaze Tracy, who is quick on the draw and a dead shot. To show his prowess, Hart keeps a tin can in the air for several seconds by a fusillade from his revolver. Another great feat he pulls when he severs the wires by which the lamps are suspended in a saloon. And Hart shows himself a wonderful horseman, too. For instance, he rolls down an embankment on horseback and then jumps about ten feet into the

AT THE APOLLO.

Alice Brady in "Then I'll Come Back to You."

Alice Brady, the popular star of the speaking stage, who has recently been signed to a long term contract by the World Film corporation, will appear at the Apollo theatre on Tuesday in the great Larry Evans' story of all outdoors, "Then I'll Come Back to You."

In filming this five-act production the producing company was taken out west, where the big timber tracts, the rushing rapids of the rivers and the very surroundings for miles around would lend to the story the very atmosphere the author desired for the technical and atmospheric interpretation of his story.

The story of "Then I'll Come Back to You" tells about the trials of a young engineer who is given a contract to construct a bridge within a specified length of time, and whose adversary desiring that he should fail in the enterprise, and by the failure of which he would gain the possession of the railroad company. How the engineer, through a series of adventures against his opposition and finally wins the woman he loves, is not only beautifully told but artistically produced with a typical Frohman cast. Don't fail to see this production with the exquisitely popular emotional actress, Alice Brady, in the star role.

AT THE APOLLO.

An Ideal Role For Marguerite Clark.

Everyone who has seen Marguerite Clark in "Wildflower," "Mice and Men," and the other Famous Players-Paramount Pictures in which she has played the mischievous little girl, will hail with delight the news that she is to star in an elaborate film adaptation of the popular story, "Molly Make-Believe," which is to be the feature at the Apollo next Wednesday. Only those who have witnessed the diminutive star's portrayal of one of those irrepressible little scamps can possibly realize the infinite charm with which Miss Clark invests her interpretations. Molly is one of the most lovable creatures in all fiction, and Miss Clark is admirably suited by temperament and by artistic skill to visualize the petite beauty of good tidings whom Eleanor Hallowell Abbott so delightfully described in her popular book.

It will be remembered that the book centered about a series of letters written to a temporary cripple by Molly. This would seem, at first blush, to constitute rather difficult material for film purposes. But the skill of the producers has woven around these letters an extremely clever and charming photoplay without in any way destroying the spirit of the book. The obvious method of simply visualizing the content of the notes has been carefully avoided and only short, striking quotations from the letters themselves have been inserted occasionally where they would be of most value.

AT THE APOLLO.

Pauline Frederick in New Guise.

Pauline Frederick, whose beauty and powerful emotional histrionism have made her the foremost dramatic actress on the screen today, is the star of the Famous Players-Paramount picture "Audrey," an adaptation of the celebrated novel by Mary Johnston, adapted into dramatic form by Harriet Ford and E. F. Boddington, which is the feature of the Apollo on Monday. In "Audrey," Miss Frederick abandons the stilted roles in which she has so wonderfully presented in "Zaza," "Bella Donna," and several other of the famous Famous Players productions in which she has starred. "Audrey" differs from Miss Frederick's previous screen characterizations in the great feeling of sympathy which is the feature of the story. The story in "Audrey" as we see this poor girl made a mere slave and later accused of conduct of which she is entirely innocent. The persecution of Audrey, her later flight into poverty and the narrow-mindedness of the little community, develop one of the strongest and most lovable characters that Miss Frederick has played on the screen.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

"The Flying Torpedo" on Sunday. How an eccentric detective story writer rolled the enemies of this country and made possible the use of a novel means of defense which saved the nation is told in a thrilling story of the future called "The Flying Torpedo." This Fine Arts-Triangle story is coming to the Beverly theatre Sunday. Because of this nation's unpreparedness, there is much doubt and confusion among the people. There has been a herd of defense organizations including the most distinguished inventors. This board offers a prize for the invention of a device that could make the shores of the United States invulnerable. According to the plot, a band of international spies seize upon the invention of a flying torpedo and before a duplicate can be made by the inventor's assistant (the spies having killed the inventor) an invading force is actually entrenched several miles inland. The perfection of the torpedo controlled by wireless enables the United States troops to rout the invader and bring the picture to a patriotic end.

AT THE APOLLO.

Vaudeville Tonight and Sunday. On the vaudeville bill at the Apollo tonight and Sunday is an animal act that will prove a very pleasing attraction to both old and young. Included in the act is one pony, two dogs, two seals and two doves. The seals and Fisher make a refined little musical "sister" team. They sing and play both the violin and the piano to the delight of their audience. Pistol and Cushing are a good comedy pair with a touch of minstrelsy to their act. Al Derby's method of punching the bag would make some of the "white hopes" envious.

Jack Devereaux, who plays Max Bulger, Bunker's friend, in "His Majesty Bunker Bean," which comes here to Myers Theatre for one performance on Tuesday evening, June 6, directly following its brilliant six months' engagement in Chicago, is a product of the "old sod," having first seen the light of day in County Clare, Ireland. He came to this country with his parents when he was a babe over three years of age, locating in New York City. His first appearance on the stage was with the Courtenay Stock company in Albany. His first engagement with a touring company was in David Belasco's "Sweet Kitty Bellairs." He next appeared in "George Ade's 'Just Out of College,' then created the part of Hunter in Eugene Walter's "The Wolf." Following this he was with "Baby Mine," in which he scored a splendid success, then came an engagement with "Marriage a la Carte," a musical comedy, after which he joined William H. Crane in "The Senator Keeps House," remaining with Crane for two years. He next created the part of Hopkinson Brown in "The Aviator," following which he played in "A Pair of Sixes," "The Peud," and was then engaged to create the part of Monty in "The Spendthrift." In casting "His Majesty Bunker Bean," Mr. Devereaux was the only actor ever considered for the resourceful Bulger.

In Case of Burns.
The best immediate application for a burn or scald is carron oil. This preparation of equal parts of linseed oil and lime water should be kept always at hand when there are young children about. When a child receives a burn or scald, shake the bottle of carron oil thoroughly, then saturate some lint, gauze or muslin with it and put on the burned surface. Clean olive oil or vasoline are good substitutes for the carron oil.—Deineator.

Important to Education.
The most important part of education is the training of the senses which, besides supplying the faculty of accurate observation, creates the habit of careful reflection and measured reasoning. The boys on the farms, no less than those who are being trained in the trades, acquire extensive development of the senses. The advent of mechanical power and machinery, however, has impaired this development.—President Charles W. Eliot.

"A book that blurs the eyes and stirs the heart with the pity of it. With nobility of manner, with a passionate sincerity that touches the subject as by fire in a purity that burns away all impurity."

"That the shameful traffic which the author exposes does exist, there can be no shadow of doubt, and it constitutes a reproach to all of us who lift no hand to stay it."
—Dr. Solomon Solis Cohen.

"But it is not a sensation-seeking story and it is not a curiosity-pandering story. It is not written in the wheedling tones of the slum-conductor, but in the challenging voice of the Moral Surgeon."
—J. B. Kerfoot.

"To say the book is immoral because it takes a great crime against humanity for its theme is to say that the Ten Commandments are immoral—it cannot be read and forgotten."
—The Chicago Daily News.

"It shows sincerity of purpose and resorts to no clap-trap or sensationalism."

CHAPTER XXIV.

Sheridan waited until he heard the sound of the outer door closing; then he rose and pushed a tiny disk set in the wall. Jackson appeared.

"Has Bibbs got home from work?" "Miss Bibbs? No, sir."

"Tell him I want to see him, soon as he comes."

"Yessuh."

Sheridan returned to his chair and fixed his attention fiercely upon the newspaper. He found it difficult to push the items beyond their explanatory value—there was nothing new or startling to concentrate his attention.

"Non-uman Puts Blame on Brakes. Three Killed When Car Slides. 'Burglars Make Big Haul.' 'Board Works Approve Big Car-Line Extension.' 'Gold-up Men Injure Two. Man Found in Alley. Skull Fractured.' 'Shocking Story Told in Divorce Court.' 'Plan New Eighteen-story Structure.' 'Schoolgirl Meets Death Under Automobile.' 'Negro Cuts Three. One Dead.' 'Life Crushed Out. Third Elevator Accident in Same Building Causes Action by Coroner.' 'Theater Militia Will be Menace. Polish Societies Protest to Governor in Church Biting Case.' 'Short $2,500 in Accounts. Trustee Man Kills Self With Gun.' 'Found Frozen. Family Without Food or Fuel. Baby Dead When Parents Return Home From Seeking Work.' 'Minister Returned From Trip Abroad Lectures on Big Future of Our City. Sees Big Improvement During Short Absence. Says No European City Holds Candle.' Sheridan nodded approvingly here.

Bibbs came through the hall whistling, and entered the room briskly.

"Well, father, did you want me?"

"Yes. Sit down." Sheridan got up, and Bibbs took a seat by the fire, holding out his hands to the crackling blaze, for it was cold outdoors.

"I came within seven of the shop record today," he said. "I handled more strips than any other workman in my day this month. The nearest to me is sixteen behind."

"There!" exclaimed his father, greatly pleased. "What'd I tell you? I'd like to hear Gurney hint again that I wasn't right in sending you there—I would just like to hear him! And you—did you ashamed of makin' such a fuss about it? Ain't you?"

"I didn't go at it in the right spirit the other time," Bibbs said, smiling. "I was just in the chereful mood. I didn't know the difference. It meant to like a thing."

"Well, I guess I've pretty thoroughly vindicated my judgment. I guess I have. I said the shop'd be good for you, and it was. I said it wouldn't hurt you, and it hasn't. It's been just exactly what I said it would be. Ain't that so?"

"Looks like it!" Bibbs agreed, gayly.

"Well, I'd like to know any place I been wrong, first and last! Instead of makin' you, it's been the makin' of you—physically. It's started you out to be the huskiest one of the whole family. Now, then, mentally—that's different. I don't say it unkindly. Bibbs, but you got to do something for yourself mentally, just like what's been done physically. And I'm going to help you."

Sheridan decided to sit down again. He brought his chair close to his son's, and, leaning over, tapped Bibbs' knee confidentially. "I got plans for you, Bibbs," he said.

Bibbs instantly looked thoroughly alarmed. He drew back. "I—I'm all right now, father."

"Listen," Sheridan settled himself in his chair, and spoke in the tone of a reasonable man reasoning. "Listen, Bibbs. I had another blow today, and it was a hard one and right in the face, though I have been expecting it some little time back. Well, it's got to be met. Now I'll be frank with you. As I said a minute ago, mentally I couldn't ever called you a strong man. You got will power. I'll say that for you. I never knew any man that could be stubborn—never one in my life! Now, then, you've showed you could learn to run that machine best of any man in the shop, in no time at all. That looks to me like you could learn to do other things. I don't deny but what it's an encouragin' sign. I don't deny that, at all. Now, then, I'm going to give you a raise. I wanted to send you straight on up through the shops—a year or two, maybe—but I can't do it. I lost him, and now I've lost Roscoe. He's quit. He's laid down on me. If he ever comes back at all, he'll be a long time pickin' up the strings, and, anyway, he ain't the man I thought he was. I can't count on him. I got to have somebody I know I can count on. And I'm down to this: you're my last chance. Bibbs, I got to learn you to use what brains you got and see if we can't develop 'em a little. Who knows? And I'm going to put my time in on it. I'm going to take you right downtown with me, and I won't be hard on you if you're a little slow at first. And I'm going to do the big thing for you. I'm going to make you feel you got to do the big thing for me. In return, I'm going to make an appeal to your ambition that'll make you dizzy!" He tapped his son on the knee again. "Bibbs, I'm going to start you off this way: I'm going to make you a director in the Pump Works company; I'm going to make you vice president of the Realty company and a vice-president of the Trust company!"

"You're My Last Chance."

Bibbs jumped to his feet, blanching.

"Oh, no!" he cried.

Sheridan took his dismay to be the excitement of sudden joy. "Yes, sir! And there's some pretty fat little salaries goes with those vice-presidencies, and a pinch o' stock in the Pump company with the directorship. You thought I was pretty mean about the shop—oh, I know you did!—but you see the old man can play both ways. And so right now, the minute you've begun to make good the way I wanted you to, I deal from the new deck. And I'll keep on handlin' it out bigger and bigger every time you show me you're big enough to play the hand I deal you. I'm starlin' you with a pretty big one, my boy!"

"But I don't—I don't—I don't want it!" Bibbs stammered.

Sheridan looked perplexed. "What's the matter with you? Didn't you understand what I was tellin' you?"

"I know, I know! But I can't take it."

"What's the matter with you?" Sheridan was half amazed, half suspicious. "Your head feel funny?"

"I've never been quite so sane in my life," said Bibbs, "as I have lately. And I've got just what I want. I'm living exactly the right life. I'm earning my daily bread, and I'm happy in doing it. My wages are enough. I don't want any more money, and I don't deserve any."

"Damnation!" Sheridan sprang up. "You've turned Socialist! You been listening to those fellows down there, and you—"

"No, sir. I think there's a great deal in what they say, but that isn't it."

Sheridan tried to restrain his growing fury, and succeeded partially. "Then what is it? What's the matter?"

"Nothing," his son returned, nervously. "Nothing—except that I'm content. I don't want to change any thing."

"Why not?"

Bibbs had the incredible folly to try to explain. "I'll tell you, father. If I can, I know it may be hard to understand—"

"Yes, I think it may be," said Sheridan, grimly. "What you say usually is a little that way. Go on!"

Perturbed and distressed, Bibbs rose instinctively; he felt himself at every possible disadvantage. He was a sleeper clinging to a dream—a rough hand stretched to shake him and wake him. He went to a table and made vague drawings upon it with a finger, and as he spoke he kept his eyes lowered. "You weren't altogether right about the shop—that is, in one way you weren't, father." He glanced up apprehensively. Sheridan stood facing him, expressionless, and made no attempt to interrupt. "That's difficult to explain," Bibbs continued, lowering his eyes again, to follow the tracings of his finger. "I believe the shop might have done for me this time. If I hadn't—if something hadn't helped me to—oh, not only to bear it, but to be happy in it. Well, I am happy in it. I want to go on just as I am. And of all things on earth that I am. I don't want to live a business life—I don't want to be drawn into it. I don't think it is living—and now I am living. I have the beautiful toil—and I can think. In business as important as yours I couldn't think anything but business. I don't—I don't think making money is worth while."

"Go on," said Sheridan, curtly, as Bibbs paused.

"It hasn't seemed like anywhere, that I can see," said Bibbs. "You think this city is rich and powerful—but what's the use of its being rich and powerful? They don't teach the children any more in the schools because the city is rich and powerful. They teach them more than they used to because some people—not rich and powerful—people—have thought the thoughts to teach the children. And yet when you've been reading the paper I've heard you objecting to the children being taught anything except what would help them to make money. You said it was wasting the taxes. You want them taught to make a living, but not to live. When I was a little boy this wasn't an ugly town; now it's hideous. What's the use of being big just to be hideous? I mean I don't think all this has meant really going ahead—it's just been getting bigger and dirtier and noisier. Wasn't the whole country happier and in many ways wiser when it was smaller and cleaner and quieter and kinder? I know you think I'm an utter fool, father, but, after all, though, aren't business and politics just the housekeeping part of life? And wouldn't you despise a woman that not only made her housekeeping her ambition, but did it so noisily and dirtily that the whole neighborhood was in a continual turmoil over it? And suppose she talked and thought about her housekeeping all the time, and was always having additions built to her house when she couldn't keep clean what she already had; and suppose, with it all, she made the house altogether unpeaceful and unlivable—"

"Just one minute!" Sheridan interrupted, adding, with terrible courtesy, "If you will permit me? Have you ever been right about anything?"

"I don't quite—"

"I ask the simple question: Have you ever been right about anything whatever in the course of your life? Have you ever been right upon any subject or question you've thought about or talked about? Can you mention one single time when you were proved to be right?"

He was flourishing the bandaged hand as he spoke, but Bibbs said only,

"If I've always been wrong before, surely there's more chance that I'm right about this. It seems reasonable to suppose something would be due to bring up my average."

"Yes, I thought you wouldn't see the point. And there's another you probably couldn't see, but I'll take the liberty to mention it. You been bakin' all your life. Pretty much everything I ever wanted you to do, you'd let out some kind of a boiler, like you are now—and yet I can't seem to remember once when you didn't have to lay down and do what I said. But go on with your remarks about our city and the business of this country. Go on!"

"I don't want to be part of it," said Bibbs, with unwonted decision. "I want to keep to myself, and I'm doing it now. I couldn't, if I went down there with you. I'd be swallowed into it. I don't care for money enough to—"

"No," his father interrupted, still dangerously quiet. "You're never had to earn a living. Anybody could tell that by what you say. Now, let me remind you; you're sleepin' in a pretty good bed; you're eatin' pretty fair food; you're wearin' pretty fine clothes. Just suppose one of these noisy housekeepers—me, for instance—decided to let you do your own housekeeping. May I ask what your proposition would be?"

"I'm earning nine dollars a week."

"Bibbs, sturdily. "It's enough. I shouldn't mind at all."

"Who's sayin' you that nine dollars a week?"

"My work," Bibbs answered. "And I've done so well on that clipping machine I believe I could work up to fifteen or even twenty a week at another job. I could be a fair plumber in a few months, I'm sure. I'd rather have a trade than be in business—I should, infinitely!"

"You better set about learnin' on a pretty darn quick!" But Sheridan struggled with his temper and again was partially successful in controlling it. "You better learn a trade over Sunday, because you're either goin' down with me to my office Monday morning—or you can go to plumbin'."

"All right," said Bibbs, gently. "I can get along."

AND HE DID.

The reading class was in session and the word "furlough" occurred. Miss Jones, the teacher, asked if any little girl or boy knew the meaning of the word.

"One small hand was raised."

"Furlough means a mule," said the child.

"Oh, no, it doesn't," said the teacher.

"Yes, ma'am," insisted the little girl. "I have the book at home that says so."

"I don't quite—"

"I ask the simple question: Have you ever been right about anything whatever in the course of your life? Have you ever been right upon any subject or question you've thought about or talked about? Can you mention one single time when you were proved to be right?"

He was flourishing the bandaged hand as he spoke, but Bibbs said only,

"If I've always been wrong before, surely there's more chance that I'm right about this. It seems reasonable to suppose something would be due to bring up my average."

"Yes, I thought you wouldn't see the point. And there's another you probably couldn't see, but I'll take the liberty to mention it. You been bakin' all your life. Pretty much everything I ever wanted you to do, you'd let out some kind of a boiler, like you are now—and yet I can't seem to remember once when you didn't have to lay down and do what I said. THE HEAVENS IN JUNE

JUNE 5
JUNE 10
JUNE 30

Brilliant spectacle presented this month—An exceptionally good time to study the stars—How to familiarize yourself with them—Start with the Great Dipper—Cassiopeia and the rest of the constellations.

Prominent newcomers for the month are the stars Altair in Aquila and Antares in Scorpio—Planets Mars and Venus visible in evening sky and Mercury to be seen just before sunrise toward end of month.

(By C. S. Brainin of the Columbia University Observatory Staff.)

The warm evenings of June prove an irresistible incentive to the study of the heavens, and certainly the sight presented to us by the sky at this time of the year will repay the seeker after the beauties and romances of astronomy. It is our purpose this month to show how by means of the star chart the initiated can identify the constellations and individual stars and thus realize some of the wonders of science and make the stars mean more to him than just points of light.

The heavenly bodies in general may be divided into two groups for the purpose of this elementary exposition. Those that belong to the solar system and those that do not. The former group contains the sun itself, the planets—Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, the Planets, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune. All the other heavenly bodies are extraneous to the system of the sun, excepting the comets, which may become members of the system though originally from outside, and certainly as through the boundaries of the sun's domain.

The best constellation to start with is probably the Great Dipper, in the constellation Ursa Major, the Great Star. Turn to the north and peep well up from the horizon you will find these seven stars in the formation shown on the chart, the handle of the Dipper pointing toward and very near the zenith, i. e., the point directly overhead. This group, once recognized will not be forgotten, no matter what position the rotation puts the Dipper into. There are no other bright stars in the immediate neighborhood. The two stars with the arrow drawn through them on the chart, forming the outer rim of the Dipper, are called the North Pole Pointers, because the point to which they point is the star nearest the position of the North Pole. This is a part of the group of Ursa Minor, the Lesser Bear, which constellation also has the approximate shape of a dipper, but the stars composing it are not nearly so prominent as those of its larger companion. On the opposite side of the Pole and at about the same distance from it as the Big Dipper is the constellation Cassiopeia, easily recognized because its shape is that of the letter W. Now face south and not far below the zenith you will see a very bright star, which is Arcturus in Bootes. The last two stars of the handle of the Big Dipper almost point to it. To the east is the half circle of Corona Borealis, with the bright star Gemma, its jewel, in the center. To the east of this, in turn, is a broad field of medium bright stars, which compose the group of Hercules. Further on, but yet fairly well up in the heavens, is the extremely bright bluish-white star Vega. This star is easily recognizable, with its two fainter companions, and can well be used as a reference point in the study of the surrounding stars.

Down in the east near the horizon is Aquila the Eagle, with its first magnitude star Altair, and far in the south-east is Antares, of the group Scorpio. A little less than half way up from the horizon, in the south, is the brightest of the constellation of the Virgin, Deneb. To the west of Deneb, in the same constellation, is the star Zosma, and to the west of Zosma, in the constellation of the Boötes, is the star Arcturus. To the west of Arcturus, in the constellation of the Boötes, is the star Arcturus. To the west of Arcturus, in the constellation of the Boötes, is the star Arcturus.

We have, then, here pointed out a way to use the star map to good advantage by showing how to pick out certain easily recognizable objects to use as guide posts in a further attempt to learn the identity of the stars.

The New Constellations for June. Two very important newcomers have this month crossed the horizon by the time of our map—Altair in Aquila, the Eagle, and Antares in Scorpio, both mentioned above. Altair is a star brighter than the standard first magnitude star, and its distance from the earth is probably not less than fifteen light years; it is approaching the earth at the rate of about 24 miles per second. Antares in Scorpio is not quite so bright, but is a famous star on account of its ruddy tinge, much like that of the planet Mars. It has a tiny companion which can be seen in a telescope with a five inch lens. The color is green, and the two stars, of such contrasting colors, make a beautiful sight. Astrologers looked up red Antares as a star of great misfortune, of fire and war, and he certainly was an object of worship to the old Egyptians. Olcott says in his book on the Star Lore of the Ages that the alchemists believed that only when the Sun was in the constellation of Scorpio could the much desired transmutation of iron into gold be performed.

Mars and Venus are visible in the evening sky, as shown on the chart, and Mercury can be seen just before sunrise on and about June 29. The Sun will be at the Summer solstice on June 21 and on that day will attain its highest possible altitude above the horizon, giving us the longest day and the shortest night of the year.

WHERE GERMANS AND FRENCH ARE AT HANDGRIPS IN VICINITY OF VERDUN

The beginning of the fourth month of the struggle for Verdun has been marked by a battle of the greatest intensity. The battle centers on two main divisions. Dead Man's Hill, to the west of the Meuse, is one of these. Here the Germans are attempting to take the hill and the positions to the east and west which are admitted to be the key to the defense in this sector. To the east of the river the battle is centered on a front reaching from Douaumont farm eastward to Fort Douaumont and thence south. The Germans have retaken some of the positions captured recently by the French, including the most of Fort Douaumont, which before the successful French onslaught of a few days ago had been held by the Germans ever since they first began the Verdun attack.

POLICE SEEK BODY OF MISSING CAPITALIST

Duluth, June 2.—Police with grappling hooks aided with numerous craft today searched the bottom of St. Louis Bay, Duluth, in hope of finding the body of S. J. Estee, thirty, stock exchange member and clubman, who disappeared from the pleasure yacht Rambler here Wednesday night, after telling Kenneth P. Van Riper, owner of the yacht, he wanted some night to have gone from the Rambler in a canoe. The canoe was empty when found yesterday morning. Chief of Police McKelcher of Duluth is said to be firmly of the belief that Estee lost his life from the canoe. He also declared numerous telegrams, said to be of nature demanding Estee's immediate answer in regard to stocks or money, awaited Estee here. Estee's New York address is 52 Broadway.

ABILITY

That's the one word that fully describes the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers

A man came in to my place the other day and said:

"What! a 3400 r.p.m. Chalmers at $1090. I never knew Chalmers built a car under $2,000."

So many ask the same question. We never feature price in big type. We don't sell price. We sell a car first; then tell how much it costs afterwards.

I suppose we lose some sales that way. But, of course, we have a car of such decided quality, of such extraordinary ability, of such terrific power from an engine that you wonder where it all comes from—well, we just don't know how to talk price when so many other things bob up in our minds.

Now take power. Here it is rated at 25.3 H.P. when you buy your license. You get her out in mud, or sand, or on a hill—and bing, you can just double that figure.

You have got just about 100 per cent more power than we give her credit for.

Of course, lots of cars have great big power. But with most of them you've got to pay the piper every time you use it. Those big power cars have great big engines mostly, and great big engines have a terrific appetite for gas. You know, I don't need to tell you.

This 3400 r.p.m. Chalmers has an engine in her that's got the kick.

You step on the accelerator button, and zip! You never saw such spunk.

And not only power, but she gets away like a scared horse. I have to watch my foot when it is on the little button. First thing I know I am going too fast.

That's what the boys back at the Chalmers plant call "acceleration." I call it "pep." That's my language.

I used to sell a lot of cars in days gone by in simply stating the price.

Now it is all different.

People are buying cars more intelligently. They want what they call ability. There are too many cars that look alike and have the same price tag on them. The only thing that separates them is ability. There's all the difference in the wide world between cars when you look at them this way.

One car is sluggish like a ploughing horse. Another has got a light foot and gets under way without taking a quarter mile to get into high.

Why, with this 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers I forget once in a while and actually start her on high.

There aren't many cars that ever do that.

Then she runs so everlastingly quiet I am always a little bit suspicious of her—like a fellow who doesn't talk much, but usually delivers.

She's got anything in this town beat. So far I have yet to meet her equal in "pep." She's got everything from get-away to a twister on a hill.

Then when you come right down to look at her, you will have to admit she's got blue eyes. She's beautiful.

The big-town people have all fallen for her this year. I got a letter from the factory the other day telling me they had shipped 18,000 since December 1.

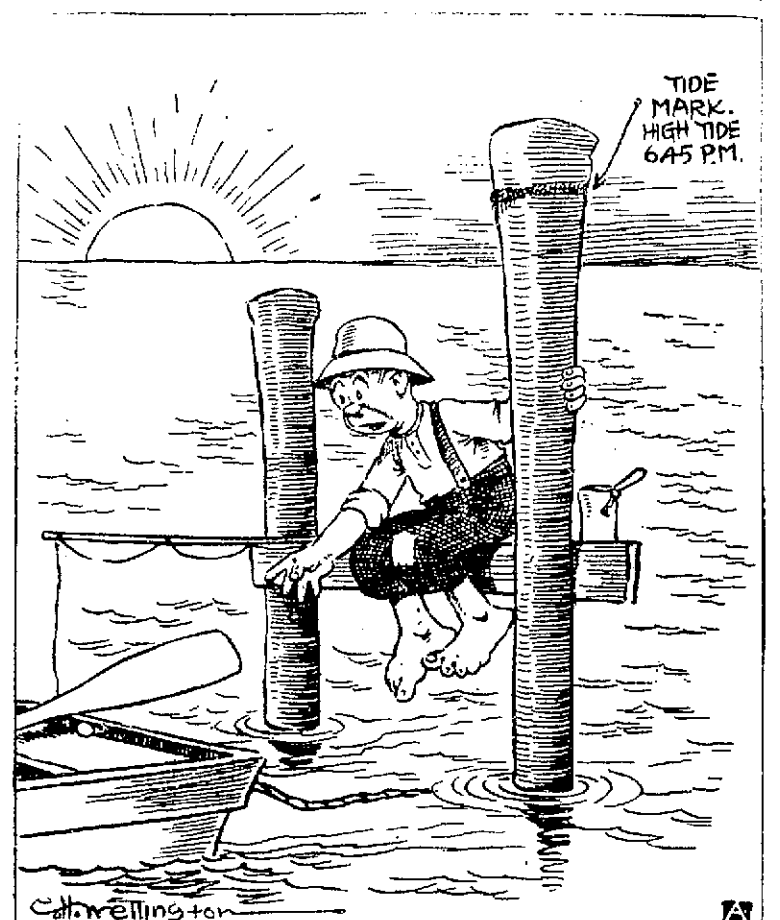

And there are thousand of orders unfilled.

Take a friendly tip and get your order on file now. I don't want to see you disappointed by delayed delivery right in the best part of the driving season.

You folks who have driven a lot will see the difference in a jiffy. Come on down and try her out. She's there.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are four girls, fourteen, fifteen and sixteen years of age. We would like to get acquainted with a boy, but have never had an introduction. How can we do this?

(2) We left some letters lying on our desks. We have not been friends. A boy opened them and read them. Do you think this was proper for him to do? He is teasing us about what was in the letters. What can we do to make him stop?

(3) Is it proper for girls of our age to correspond with boys that we know and who are our own age?

(4) I went with a boy last winter and we were very good friends, but he became angry at me because I wrote him a note and I signed another girl's name. I did it just for fun. He has not been friendly since. Do you think that I did wrong in writing that note? Do you think he should have become angry?

BABE, PAT, POLLY & SALLIE.

(1) It is the boy's place to seek the introduction.

(2) The boy should not have opened the letters, and you should not have left them around. He probably thought you purposely put them there for him to read. Boys are not slow about seeing through girls' schemes. Don't pay any attention to him when he teases.

(3) It is all right.

(4) The kind of fun you mention very often turns out badly. The boy probably believed that the girl wrote the note and said something to her that made him appear foolish. There is nothing in the world a boy likes so much as to appear foolish to a girl, and so he can hardly be blamed for getting angry.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have just met a young man who by occupation is a chauffeur. He has asked me to go for a ride sometime. Would it be all right for me to go?

(2) What is the proper thing for a girl to say to a fellow when she does not wish to dance with him?

(3) Is it the proper thing for a girl to call a fellow on the telephone and tell him there is going to be a dance in her town?

(4) Is it proper for a girl to kiss a fellow good night when he is leaving her home?

(5) Should a fellow come to see a girl without first letting her know that he is coming?

(6) A fellow has my pocket and has had it for a long time. I wrote and asked him for it. He answered my letter but did not mention the pocket. What would be a wise thing to do?

GASOLINE KID.

(1) A girl needs to be very careful about the kind of boy she goes automobile riding with. It will be all right to go if you feel sure he is of good character and your mother likes him.

(2) "My dances are taken."

(3) No. When you are with him you might mention that there is going to be a dance, but don't call him up to do so. No, it is not proper. A girl cannot command respect if she does such things.

(4) It is perfectly proper for a boy to call without letting the girl know that he is coming.

(5) Write and ask for it again. You shouldn't have given it to him in the first place.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are two girls of fifteen. Are we too young to go to a theatre or place of amusement with a boy friend if our parents know we are going?

(2) Are we too young to correspond with a boy?

(3) Is it proper to go buggy riding with a boy if a girl friend is along?

(4) Is it proper to go to a party without a chaperone?

(5) Should a boy wear a girl's ring?

(1) I think you are too young.

(2) No, if your mothers do not mind.

(3) Yes, if you are not silly while you are riding.

(4) It would be all right to go to a party at someone's home.

SHE THINKS SHE KNOWS

"I'm sure you could go out more if you tried. Just make up your mind to it. Don't be so afraid of getting tired. What if you do?"

That is what a very healthy young woman is constantly saying to a rather frail little friend of hers.

Both the girls work in offices. When the day's work is over the more delicate girl is tired out and wants to rest, while her friend wants to go out somewhere. And she simply can't understand the other's unwillingness to go every evening.

"I feel tired myself sometimes," she says, "but I brace up. I don't believe in giving in to it."

She doesn't know any more how the other girl feels than a bird knows how a fish feels.

As if they were the measure of the universe.

There are a great many people like that, who are always telling you what you can and can't do and illustrating by themselves, as if they were the measure of the universe, to tell them the unvarnished truth, that they don't know what they are talking about.

Everyone knows his own strength.

How closely we live and yet how far we are from knowing anything about each other's thoughts and sensations.

I have spoken before of how impossible it is for one to know what another suffers. What one man calls a terrible pain another, more accusomed to suffering, might regard as a trifle.

To take another instance, what do we know about each other's sensations in such matters as sense of taste?

I know a wife who often criticizes her husband because he thinks so much about the pleasures of eating. She secretly knows what she is eating and would be content if the whole business of eating were reduced to the swallowing of food pellets.

He may have a much keener sense of taste.

Each thinks the other's feeling is simply a result of mental attitude, but it is not possible that her husband has a much keener sense of taste than his wife and therefore finds a greater pleasure in eating? Perhaps if she could feel differently about the matter, perhaps, but no one will ever know, because we have no way of measuring each other's sensations.

When you do not mean to cry down the philosophy of one or to deny there are many people who would be better off if they didn't give in to themselves so much. I merely say that when someone attempts to judge who these people are, our only care should be that we are not among them.

Marrying a Butterfly

"This is a note from Mrs. Eva Forsyth, asking us to come down for the week end. You know I told you about meeting them at a picnic in the woods. They have an elegant touring car."

I imagine they live in "good society" and I think you would enjoy visiting them. Ethel tossed the note to her mother.

"Jack has been entertained at our house many times. I should like to go. Just write and say I am visiting here and that of course will bring me an invitation. (Can Ralph go away for Saturday?) There had been a decided coolness between Mrs. Forsyth and her son-in-law since the evening when she had tried to interfere in his business affairs."

"Oh, he can come down Saturday afternoon or evening and we can go on the car to the lake. I am crazy to know what kind of a home they have." Ethel reached for the note again. "Her stationery is good, but nothing fancy."

"You might have married that fellow if you had worked it right. I am sure he was very much in love with you at one time." Mrs. Forsyth's tone was disconcerted.

"Oh, I could never have loved him as you do Ralph," said Ethel, determined to make her mother think everything was all right. "Besides he was not rich when I knew him."

Mrs. Forsyth sniffed. "If you are anything like your father, you can't long continue to love a man who fails to provide properly for you. You cannot respect him, and respect is necessary to love," she replied.

"Oh, I respect Ralph; everyone must. He is a good business man and has risen rapidly."

"Oh, it is all very well for you to stand up for him; a good wife should. I always stood up for your father (she did not say against whom), but in your heart you know you might have done better."

"Don't, mother," pleaded Ethel.

"I guess you are right. It is of no use to discuss disagreeable

SARCOMA THE GALLOPING CANCER

Years ago we used to hear much of "galloping consumption." The term signified a very rapid course of the disease, which doctors now call acute phthisis, or a sort of tubercular pneumonia—an acute inflammation of a whole lobe or lung due to the tubercle bacillus.

There is a form of cancer which carries a similar title. It is called sarcoma. This kind of cancer possesses several distinguishing characteristics unlike ordinary cancer.

Sarcoma occurs in persons of any age, from infancy to advanced years. Ordinary cancer is unusual in young persons.

Sarcoma develops acutely, whereas ordinary cancer is insidious in onset. A child or adult suffers some slight injury, and weeks or months later trouble begins at the seat of injury, swelling, pain, tenderness, the symptoms suggesting "rheumatism" or inflammation of an organ.

Galloping cancer may affect any organ or tissue. It frequently develops in the long bones of arm or leg, in the jaw, in the soft tissues of the abdominal wall, in the nasal cavity, in the ear, in the face or tongue.

Ordinary cancer spreads through its "roots," that is, it follows the lymphatic or drainage channels of the affected area and takes root in the lymphatic vessels. In the case of galloping cancer, the cancer cells are carried through the circulation (metastases), lodging perhaps in the lungs, the brain or elsewhere in some distant organ. The surgical treatment of ordinary cancer offers fair prospects, if all the neighboring lymph glands are excised at the same time, but the surgical removal of sarcoma, even at the earliest possible time, may be futile if perchance some metastasis has already occurred.

There is this favorable point, however: While ordinary cancer has no definite limiting wall, sarcoma shades off imperceptibly into sound tissue and is generally sharply defined.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

How to Write a Letter.

For some time past I have felt the need of consulting you on a subject of interest very near and dear to me, but owing to a certain delicacy I have hitherto foreborne, but the subject has so disturbed me mentally that I refrain from asking your advice any longer is simply out of the question. I trust I am not presuming upon your valuable time, etc., etc.

Answer—This young woman had neither abused her mother nor robbed a bank, as one might suspect from the opening of her letter. All she wished to ask was this: Should a girl avoid swimming, walking, and all other exercise during menstruation? And the answer is: No, not unless there is some particular or exceptional reason.

Dentist, X-Ray, Now What?

Answer—Your dentist has told you just what you should do. The teeth will trouble you later, either locally or by causing some systemic trouble like "rheumatism."

Lame Back, and Kidneys That "Seem"

I am troubled with a lame back. My kidneys seem weak. Please advise.

Answer—Now, now, friend, kidneys are not always what they seem. Rarely, if ever, do they cause backache. You should let your doctor advise you about that lame back.

TIMELY TIPS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

WHAT TO DO WITH SOUR CREAM

(Prepared for the Gazette by Nellie Maxwell, Department of Farmers' Institutes, of the University of Wisconsin.)

The question is often asked by women living in dairy districts, "What can be done with sour cream, when it has more than we know how to use?"

It almost seems like asking what can be done with money, for cream is such a valuable food and may be used in so many ways that it is almost impossible to list them all. It should never be wasted.

The idea with most women is not to use it in so many ways as we have used sour cream for griddle cakes, biscuits of various kinds, cakes, cookies, short-cakes, puddings, salad dressings, meat sauces, fish sauces and freezing it into ice cream. Many of us have used it for a dough for rolls, for a light custard cream. And did you ever use sour cream in place of milk in preparing a white sauce for casseroles? It makes a treat in stodge. Do not cook the cream too long to allow it to curdle the mixture.

But you ask for recipes and here are just a few:

Defour Cream Cookies—Add a cup of sugar and a cup of cream to two cups of rich sour cream, add two well beaten eggs, a teaspoonful of soda and one of baking powder, a tablespoonful of ginger, a dash of cinnamon and cloves, and enough flour to roll. Let stand on ice to chill before rolling out.

Chocolate Cake—Take a cupful of brown sugar, add half cup of sour cream, a half teaspoonful of soda, one egg well beaten, a cup and a half of flour sifted with a teaspoon of baking powder. Dissolve two squares of chocolate in a cup of boiling water and add to the cake the last time. Flour with vanilla and bake in two layers.

Cabbage Salad—Shred cabbage very fine and plunge into cold water to crisp. Drain and dress with sour cream, sugar, salt, and if not quite sour enough a very little vinegar may be added. This is a salad which can be enjoyed at any meal with almost any combination of foods.

Sour cream when mixed with fruit juices and sweetened will freeze smooth and velvety. Orange juice with sour cream and sugar to sweeten is a combination especially tasty and delightful. Mix and freeze as an ice cream. Raspberry, grape juice or peach juice are others. Lemon is such an acid with the sour cream also an acid that the result is not so good unless a sour frozen dish is desired.

THE TABLE.

Mock Haseppfeffer—Cut 2½ pounds lamb (from the shoulder) in small pieces as for stewing, put in a southern dish and cover with half cup of oil, a medium onion sliced, onion, half teaspoon whole pepper, two bay leaves and a little salt; let stand two hours. Put tablespoon of drippings in frying pan, add table-spoon flour and stir until brown. Lift out the meat and put in the frying pan with the onion, pepper, bay leaves, a cup of the liquor and a little fresh water. Let stew thirty or forty minutes, adding some of the liquor as needed. If too sour, add fresh water. This will serve five people.

Dampfnudeln—Take two pounds flour, one pint milk, one-half cup sugar, one cake compressed yeast, make a soft dough. When risen put four eggs, one pound butter and one tablespoon salt in the dough and work well and smooth; then break off pieces as big as a hen's egg, form them like rolls and put on a bread board. When light have a tight-covered pot with one cup lard in it (or half lard and half butter); let it get hot, then set in as many of the rolls as you have room for, rising space enough for them to rise in the pot. When you have enough in, take a cup of hot water with a little salt, pour it in the pot from the side and cover tight. When water has boiled away, let them brown a little, then turn and brown on other side. You can also make these out of plain bread dough when baking bread. Serve with any kind of cooked fruit.

MAYOR HOAN CONFERS WITH CITY COMMITTEES ON WELFARE PROBLEMS.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Wis., June 3.—The first meeting of an advisory committee made up of representatives of the various clubs and civic societies of the city to consult with Mayor Daniel Hoan regarding problems relating to the city's welfare, was held today. The committee was organized at the suggestion of the mayor.

NEW YORK SOCIETY HAS NOVEL PRIZES FOR ALLIED BAZAAR

Layman is Offered Opportunity of Taking Chance to Spend a Day at Exclusive Newport Home.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, June 3.—"Here you are! Only $5 a day in the most exclusive home in Newport! Buy a chance, and if you win you'll be entertained by one of Newport's most charming hostesses!"

This is the cry that resounded today when the Million Dollar Allied Bazaar began in Grand Central Palace. Among the many things to be raffled off, from neckties autographed by poets to high power touring cars, is a free trip to Newport and a day's entertainment in some villa where hitherto only those whose names are in the social register have been permitted to enter.

Just who the hostess is to be, whether it is Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. O. H. Belmont or somebody else, has not been disclosed. Not even the possibility, immediately suggested, that some I. W. W. person might get the prize and buy a chance and win the day at Newport has deterred the bazaar hostesses.

Another alluring chance that will be sold is "the day of ladylike thrills." Only men may compete for this, and the lucky winner is to be handed the following nice feminine thrills:

A morning trip with Katherine Stinson in her airplane, a regular scorcher of a ride with the most daring woman automobilist the committee can find, an afternoon spin with Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton in her motor boat, several hours of playing for the movies as the hero in the most strenuous play that can be found and dancing in the evening with Florence Wallace as partner.

France's 20,000 exhibit is made up largely of weapons and war paraphernalia and is in charge of the Marquis de Polignac, special representative of the French government for the bazaar.

Among the many interesting features of the exhibit are two aeroplanes and a hydroaeroplane, captured from the Germans, a collection of parts from a Zeppelin brought down by French gas and 500 steel arrows which Teutonic aviators rained down on ground occupied by French troops. There is a big mortar of the type used by the French troops, several captured articles of arms and hundreds of French soldiers in the trenches.

The two captured German aeroplanes are of the Albatross make. One of them was shot down "somewhere in France" by French anti-aircraft guns and the other fell inside the allied lines after being subjected to a hot fire from French aviators. The hydroaeroplane was shot down at sea by runners on board allied warships off the Belgian coast. There is one hundred tons of the exhibit in all.

The bazaar, which is to cost approximately $1,000,000 will last until June 14. The proceeds, expected to total $2,000,000, will go to the relief work in Allied countries for French soldiers in the trenches.

The affair is national in scope and will be directed by representatives of every patriotic allied order in the United States and Canada.

Members of the committee directing the bazaar are Joseph H. Choate, Myron T. Herrick, William F. McCombs, Mrs. William Alexander, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Frederick H. Jewell, Clifford B. Frost, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Fiske Warren, Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, August Belmont, Howard Elliott, Frank H. Mason, A. Barton Hepburn, Horace E. Andrews, S. R. Benton, Charles R. Banes, Edmund L. Bayles, C. A. Coffin, W. P. T. Hollingsworth, William Greenough, Ralph J. Preston, Francis L. Slade, Henry W. ECZEMA ON BABY'S HEAD AND FACE

Started With Little Pimples, Spread All Over Her Face, Head and Neck and Got Real Sore.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little daughter had a bad case of eczema on her head and face when she was five months old. She took it with just a few little red pimples, and it started from that and spread all over her face, head and neck. They got real sore and would scratch as they would itch her so much, she was terribly cross and fractious. While it lasted, her face was disfigured. She could not sleep or rest, until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I started with just a free sample and it relieved her so I purchased more and about two months after, she was healed." Gentlemen:—Have used the little "Want Ads" in the Gazette five or six times and never failed to receive answers to them. On May 1st, 3rd, and 6th, I used the following ad:

And soon I found I could hardly supply the demand for hatching eggs. My advice is, if you have anything to sell use a Gazette Want Ad and forget it. It will take care of itself.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

BOBWHITE

(Colinus virginianus)

Length, ten inches. Known everywhere by the clear whistle that suggests its name.

Range: Resident in the United States east of the plains; introduced in many places in the West.

Habits and economic status: The bobwhite is loved by every dweller in the country and is better known to more hunters in the United States than any other game bird. It is no less appreciated on the table than in the field, and in many states has unquestionably been hunted too closely.

Fortunately it seems to be practicable to propagate the bird in captivity, and much is to be hoped for in this direction. Half the food of this quail consists of weed seeds, almost a fourth of grain, and about a tenth of wild fruits. Although this eating grain, the bird gets most of it from stubble. Fifteen per cent of the bobwhite's food is composed of insects, including several of the most serious pests of agriculture. It feeds freely upon Colorado potato beetles and chinch bugs; it devours also cucumber beetles, wireworms, billbugs, clover-leaf weevils, cotton-boll weevils, army worms, bollworms, cutworms, and Rocky Mountain locusts. Take it all in all, bobwhite is very useful to the farmer, and while it may not be necessary to remove it from the list of game birds every farmer should see that his own farm is not depleted by eager sportsmen.

Each bidder must accompany his bid with a contract and bond with not less than two sureties, which shall be freeholders of the State of Wisconsin and shall justify as to their responsibility and by their several affidavits show that they are worth in the aggregate at least the amount of the entire contract price in property not by law exempt from execution. Surety companies authorized to do business in this state will be accepted in lieu of personal sureties.

Said contracts and bonds with sureties, must be completely executed on the part of the contractor, with the exception of the signatures on the part of the City of Janesville, Wisconsin, and must be completed with. Bids failing to comply with the above requirements will not be considered.

Bidders must submit proposals to do the entire work, according to the respective specifications, profiles, plans and details thereof prepared for each street upon which such bid is made stating therein prices respectively per cubic yard for grading, per square yard of pavement, per lineal foot for curbing, curbing and gutter in place; so far as the same are applicable to said work, under the specifications, profiles and plans.

No bid will be considered unless it contains a price for doing the work, with the kind of asphalt, a sample of which has been approved by the Board of Public Works, and that does not contain prices for doing the curbing work on the street upon which such bid is made, as called for in the specifications, profiles and plans.

All bids and the accompanying contracts and bonds must be written on the blanks prepared by the undersigned for the purpose, and prices should be stated in writing and in figures.

Bids, when received, shall be opened in public by the Board of Public Works, with the name of the street upon which such bid is made marked on the envelope and file the same with the city clerk of said city.

N. B. Blanks for proposals and blank contracts and bonds will be furnished on application to the city clerk. The bids when the lowest and best will be decided by the Board of Public Works.

The said Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

ABANDONING OF FIRE STATION OBJECTED TO

BUSINESS MEN APPEAL TO MAYOR OR FATHERS NOT TO CLOSE THE SPRING BROOK STATIONS.

CONFERENCE IS HELD

Question Resolves Itself Down Which System Gives Better Protection to the Property Owners.

Twelve men, who are either property owners or interested in the various manufacturing plants, represented by Attorney M. G. Jeffris, appeared before Mayor James A. Patters and entered a protest against the proposed abandoning of the fire station number three and centralizing the fire departments of this city in the two up-town department houses.

Mayor James A. Patters and H. C. Klein, fire chief, were present and represented the city. After two hours of discussion and conference both parties were convinced to the logic that there were arguments for both contentions—that the station be left at Spring Brook, and that it be closed. However, if some system or method is devised whereby adequate fire protection can be given to the property in Spring Brook and this immediate district, without incurring any decided station will probably be allowed to remain open.

Attorney Jeffris stated to Mayor Patters the reasons why the owners of property, especially those interested in the big manufacturing concerns in Spring Brook, desired to have the local station. According to Mr. Jeffris the department at Spring Brook should be strengthened, not only for the industries and property already there, but also for future concerns which were certain to locate there. The speaker brought out that this district is practically the only place in the city where manufacturing concerns can secure satisfactory sites. Mr. Jeffris stated that one company was already considering locating there and it produced a merchandise that was somewhat combustible, and these proposed factories and their products were entitled to full fire protection.

The need of firemen, trained and with proper equipment to reach a fire soon after its discovery or start, was emphasized, for the minutes saved in reaching the blaze means the reduction of the damage to be caused. It was reported that the city officials thought different, making the statement that the number three station has always been unable to cope with any fire of consequence because of the lack of properly trained men.

"If we ever hope to grow, and we sincerely do and will," said Mr. Jeffris, "a fire station in Spring Brook is a decided inducement for men to locate in Spring Brook. Fire protection is a very important consideration in the eyes of every promoter, and a powerful factor in drawing manufacturing concerns to any locality or city. Some system can be devised, I believe, where a part of the department or all of it at the number three station will be available for work in that district or can be brought into use in another district when there is a demand. The property owners down there are entitled to it, for they pay taxes."

An argument was advanced that it was unsafe for the big fire fighting apparatus, including the truck, to go across the Jackson street bridge, but the trucks and engine are routed down Main street. This argument did not hold much weight except that they were forced to travel over more ground to reach any of the big factories in Spring Brook.

"I wish to make this clear," spoke Mayor Patters. "When the city took up this question four years ago, it was done through the idea of giving more efficient service and to curtail the expenses. Unless we can give better fire protection without the Spring Brook station, considering the money saved as a secondary matter, the abandoning of the station would not be enforced. But we find that the people in Spring Brook are not getting ample fire protection from the fact that they have a local station, simply because there is not men enough down there to cope with a situation without other trained aid, and it is not worth the expense that it costs the city. In all municipalities, since the motor truck has proven its value, the idea of centralizing the stations and making one efficient department with sufficient men has become a feature in fire protection. Unless the city can protect Spring Brook better by having two or only one central fire station, the change never will be made."

Chief Klein explained the shortage of men problem, and how at times the number three department would be nearly powerless to be of any aid, and with the modern speedier equipment better results are obtained by having fewer and better equipped departments.

Fred Clemons addressed the meeting, explaining how when the present manufacturing concerns were built in Spring Brook, it was understood that they be afforded fire protection, and that it was not a question of fire protection, but the cost of the fire protection.

It was brought out that companies in this district were large employers of male labor, who would be able to find a few trained firemen at the local station in times of need. Chief Klein told that oftentimes the factory employees were a hindrance instead of assistants in a fire. To this a suggestion was offered that certain men from the establishments to be named by their employers to be trained for fire service by the fire chief, and this to become one of their factory duties.

South before noon the conference closed, no definite action being taken. The question of abandoning the station will be further considered and a more complete investigation made by the property owners and the city. If the city can convince the Spring Brook men, that better protection by having only the up-town station, no matter how the change is effected, will be of benefit to the city, the city will maintain the station one year cost more than the aggregate district.

From the economy standpoint, the station should be closed, is the opinion of the city officials. It is believed the city could save about two thousand dollars a year and possibly more by having only two department houses. It is thought only a question of time until the station house at Spring Brook will have to be rebuilt or at least remodeled. The money saved, the officials believe, would allow for more motor trucks that would afford greater speed and efficiency to all parts of the city, as more men at the main stations. According to Chief Klein the city should only have one department, at a central point and if the city officials, after careful consideration, find that their judgment is correct, this system may be adopted in the future.

WEAR RAGGED EDGE TO BE FASHIONABLE

The Fringed Frocks Are Now Quite the Thing in the World

By Margaret Mason.

Her parasol is edged with fringe
And she's fringe on her dainty
Her curling lashes fringe her eyes
And she lives on the fringe of town.

New York, June 2.—To be on the fringe of society is the last thing one could wish, but to have on the fringe of fashion is the latest thing one could wish.

Indeed it seems as if fringe were infringing on the popularity of all other trimmings.

The fringed frocks are omnipresent and hence are everywhere. They are edged of vivid hues yarn fringe to a deep fringe of silk, either black or of a tone to match or contrast with the gown.

It is used effectively on the bottoms of the wide skirts and to edge the bell shaped sleeves.

One stunning evening model shows an entire overskirt of knotted silk fringe of yellow, black, blue, green and old rose over a plaid of turquoise-blue chiffon. The sleeves are mere shreds of fringe and the apology for a bodice is a scrap of the turquoise chiffon.

The new wide cape collars are edged with narrow colorful fringe, and have a narrow yarn fringe edging and I even glimpsed a swaggy dangle which wipped her up-titled nose on a handkerchief of pale mauve with a fringe of old blue edging of thread fringe. Fringe is certainly up to snuff.

On the loose long taffeta coats and wraps either for day or evening wear the fringe is vying with the pinked ribbons as a finish, but it is as a finish for a parasol, perhaps, that fringe reaches its truly highest point.

One smart sunshade of emerald green taffeta is built on the flat, many ribbed Chinese parasol lines with a burst like sunburst ebon ferule and a long knob-finished handle of the same glossy black.

A bright green silk cord is knotted round the handle, with a fitting loop through which its owner's fair arm is meant to stick when she shuts up her sunshade in shady byways and chooses to dangle it at arm's length.

The real finishing touch of this adequately lovely parasol however, is an edging of three inch black silk fringe that brooks no infringement of the sun's rays across the summer girl's countenance.

A zebraque sunshade is one of black and white striped taffeta. The stripes radiate outward from the center and end in a fringe of alternate black and white striping to match the silk. The handle to this is of white with a black knob at the top.

A cerise parasol fringed like the black and green one is also very striking though a bit prone to cast a too rosy glow over a healthy countenance. No one may expect to look pale and interesting under cover of a cerise sunshade.

A shell pink taffeta sunshade that is a mass of petal shaped scallops like a huge pink rose just adds the pink of perfection to a summer toilette of white net and pink pick ribbon, but a shade deeper it is wiser not to go.

A purple satin parasol veiled in a film of black Spanish lace, with a quaint purple glass knobbed stick, in a Fifth avenue window is a replica of great grandmother's that now moulders in the attic and proves the aphor-

WHEREIN THE COUNTY HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER, AN AUTOMOBILE REPAIR SHOP, MERCY HOSPITAL AND THE DOCTORS WERE EACH GIVEN SOME WORK

William Lewton, a drayman, and Jens Paulsen, both of Stoughton, miraculously escaped death Tuesday night on the River Road when Lewton, driving a five-passenger touring car at an excessive speed, lost control of the machine, due to the dropping of a bolt from the steering apparatus, he says, and leaving the roadway, crashed into a heavy cement culvert guard at the edge of an eight-foot deep ditch. The illustration above was taken the following morning. At the right can be seen the nearly two-ton section of foundation by the impact of the car in the ditch is the wrecked machine, which Jens Paulsen and Lewton so luckily escaped. The men which they knocked off measured eight feet and fourteen inches thick, three feet wide at one end and about twenty inches wide at the other. The men escaped with minor injuries.

GRADE SCHOOL BASEBALL CAUSES MUCH INTEREST! LINCOLN STILL LEADS

Much interest was shown in the grade school baseball games, that were played this morning. The Jefferson-St. Patrick contest was the most interesting as these two teams were on a tie in their standing in the league. They played at Riverview park. The other games scheduled were as follows: Lincoln vs. Garfield; St. Mary's vs. Douglas; Washington vs. Webster.

A St. Patrick's wallop of the Jeffersonites to the tune of 8 to 3 which puts the Catholic nine in second place. The Lincoln kept up their winning streak and have the title of the league practically clinched. They won from the Garfield this morning by a score of 19 to 12. The Washington shut out the Webster nine this morning by a score of 9 to 0.

The St. Mary's and Douglas teams played an even game, each scored many runs. The final score was 24 to 23. Following are the standings of the teams:

Team	W.	L.	P. C.
Lincoln	6	0	1.000
St. Patrick's	5	1	.830
Washington	4	2	.666
Jefferson	4	2	.666
Garfield	4	4	.500
St. Mary's	3	2	.333

The U.S. Army War College and Its Work

The Army War College, Wash., D. C.

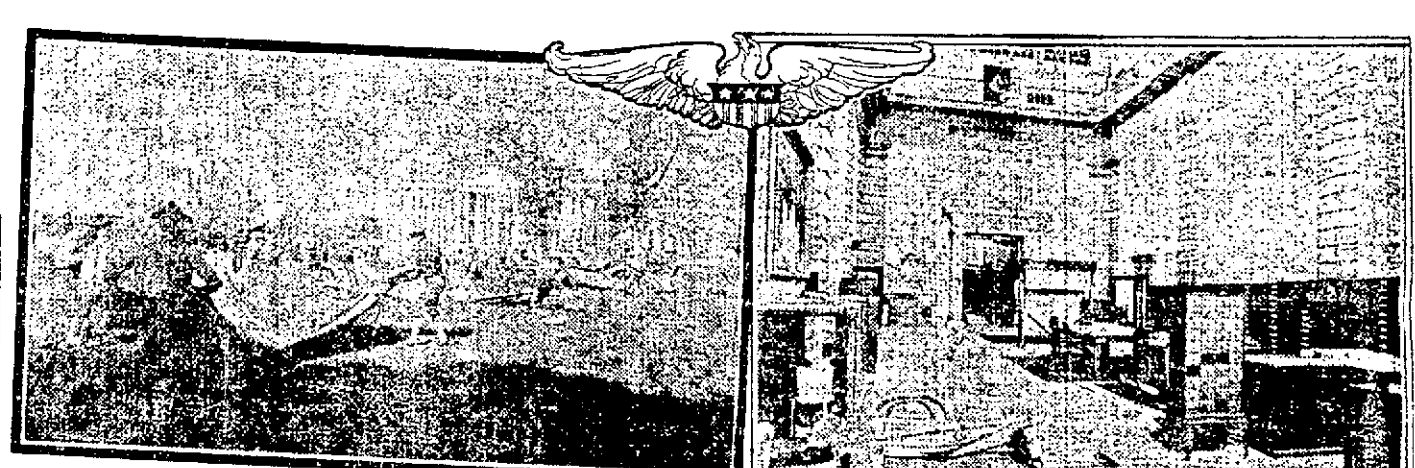

A Unique Governmental Institution That Serves As the Very Foundation of Preparedness - A Bureau of Information and An Educational Establishment In One - Where Plans for War Are Made.

BY WALDON FAWCETT.

Did you get your "war map" yet from Uncle Sam? Because if you did the chances are you are wondering how the national government can afford to sell such a map at such a price. Certainly this chart of war-ridden Europe that is being sent out from Washington does not, to use the slang expression, "look like thirty cents, although it costs only that modest sum. On the contrary this minute diagram of the countries now being drenched with blood is generally conceded to be just about the best specimen of war map ever issued by any nation.

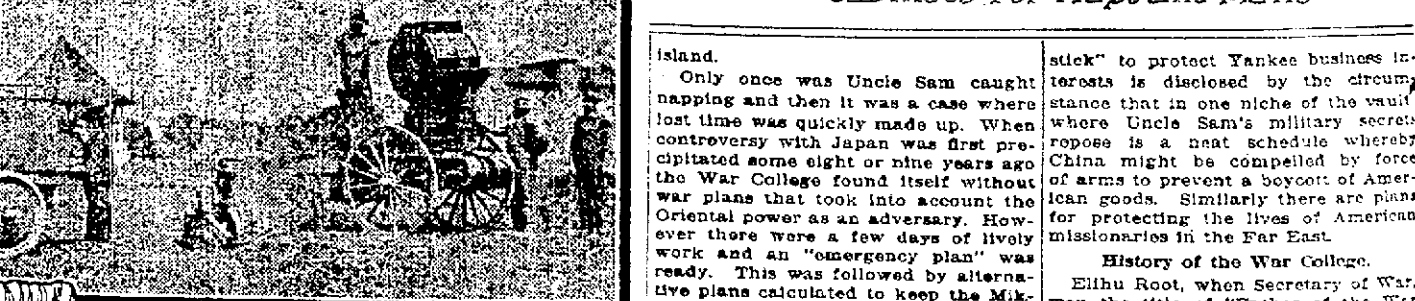

To let you into the secret of how the national government has been enabled to provide its citizens with a model war map at a merely nominal price be it explained that this map has been prepared and published by the U. S. Army War College. Perhaps that statement does not suggest anything to you, and no sham to you either, for it is a safe guess that there is not more than one citizen in a thousand who remembers that we have an Army War College and probably not more than one person in ten thousand, conversant though they be with current affairs, has any clear conception of the work of this unique institution located on the banks of the Potomac river.

War College Does Not Court Publicity. In great part it is the fault of the men who conduct the Army War College that this interesting Federal ad-

No Nation Can Catch Us Napping. That the sort of preparedness in which the War College deals is of tangible value can, perhaps, be demonstrated only in the event of an actual war but whatever their worth Uncle Sam is keeping his stock of war secrets right up-to-date. Indeed, the War College has usually taken care of matters in a given direction long before the general public has aroused to the need of preparedness in that direction. In other words, the experts at the War College can by virtue of their training and experience, discern a menacing cloud on the international horizon long ere the man on the street observes the approach of a thunder storm.

Marlow affords an object lesson as to the thoroughness of War College preparedness. For several years, to be sure, our national administration has been flitting with the question of intervention in Mexico but as far back as 1896 the War College had complete military plans for intervention in our neighbor republic. Or to turn to the case of Haiti which has lately been making us some trouble it may be observed that ever since 1904 the War College has had in reserve military and naval plans for every possible contingency in the turbulent West Indisputably, the War College has general supervision over the work of what are known as the "service schools" of the U. S. Army—the Cavalry School, the Artillery School, etc., each of which give post graduate courses of study. It is therefore appropriate enough that the War College should be set down in the grounds of one of these schools—namely the Engineer School. And such location proves a positive advantage when it is taken into account that one of the duties assigned to the War College is to investigate and try-out all new discoveries and inventions in the military field—and, in short, keep informed on all developments in the military sphere. It is in pursuance of this policy of watchfulness for innovations that we find the War College lately making an exhaustive investigation of the use of motor trucks and searchlights in warfare and probing the military possibilities of wireless telegraphy.

Just to indicate how difficult it would be to propose a military conundrum for which the War College has not an answer ready it may be mentioned that it has been only since the Panama Canal was completed that an elaborate strategic "War Game" in which the opponents were the Japanese (represented by orange) and the Americans (typified by blue and in which the theatre of war was our Pacific Coast and the Pacific Ocean.

The same sort of preparedness has been carried out with respect to the Philippines, Hawaii, etc. That the War College does not neglect the importance of protecting the Canal Zone from hostile powers. Yet more than half a decade ago the War College had completed and filed away in its archives detailed plans for preserving the neutrality of the Canal Zone, and for protecting the Canal against all sorts of attacks—not forgetting a possible attempted invasion by way of the United States of Colombia.

A Queen Anne Treatment

Home of Character No. 138

This artistic treatment of a conventional plan is favored on account of its character and the life and vim the design possesses. It is a thoroughly livable and pleasing home, 24x35 feet. The first story is of wide siding, the second story shingles and the gable ends and second story projection cement and half timber work. The porch roof is carried on trellis beams which in turn are supported by massive wood columns. The earth is terraced up close to the porch floor level, which floor is cement, marked off into squares.

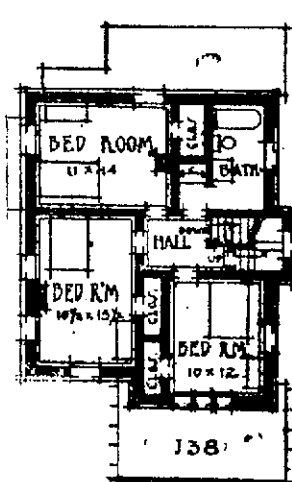

SECOND FLOOR (a)

Three rooms, pantry and reception hall are contained upon the first floor of this plan and the second floor contains four bedrooms and bath. However, at purchaser's option, a second floor may be selected containing three bedrooms considerably larger, as slight changes only, such as omission or transposition of windows, being necessary. The house contains an attic, and a basement under the entire building, with grade entrance from outside.

Cost $2800. Minimum cost $2600; maximum cost $3500.

The variation in cost will depend on kind and quality of materials used, local building conditions, and the heating and plumbing equipment installed.

SECOND FLOOR (b)

Any Gazette reader intending to build a home in the near future and desiring further information concerning this or any other "Home of Character" should take advantage of the special service Mr. Newson is prepared to render Gazette readers without charge to them.
